BILLERICA

After one year in business, family activity center Altitude Trampoline Park was awarded the Greater Lowell Chamber of Commerce's Community Champion Award. The chamber reached out to town and city managers in the area, asking them to nominate businesses that have made a difference in their community. On hand for the award ceremony were co-owners Kerry Hughes and Carolyn Rainville. Presenting the award was BillERICA's Community Development director Rob Anderson and Greater Lowell Chamber of Commerce President/CEO Danielle McFadden.

"We are so pleased to be a part of the Merrimack Valley business community and value the relationships we have made. Altitude is committed to its customers and community partners and is honored to be the recipient of this award," co-owner Kerry Hughes said. "Altitude is a family-friendly destination and is focused on providing a clean and safe environment for all to enjoy. We are grateful to the Chamber for recognizing our efforts."
